

Sheep Are Unshorn Because of Strike

Sheepers Want an Advance Because of Heavier Work—This Sheepmen Have Declined.

Special to The Tribune.
RAWLINS, Wyo., April 21.—Sheep men are in a great turmoil over a strike inaugurated by the sheep shearers, hearing was to begin this week at almost every pen in the county, but at some of the pens the men have refused to go to work, and at all except one, where work was started, they have left the pens, and in some instances only a few hundred sheep in a flock were left unshorn.
Sheepers are contending for a 1 cent raise in wages on the ground that the fleeces are so much more difficult to shear. They say that the past winter has been so dry that the wool is blown full of sand and the best shears made will stand only about 250 fleeces, and shearers who have in the past handled from 100 to 150 sheep a day now shear no more than 75 to 100 at the best. Another claim which is also admitted by the sheep men is that fleeces are from one to two pounds heavier than last year. The price demanded is 8 cents and board.
The sheep men claim that shearing is of hard, and as evidence that the fleeces are not dirty say that every sheep when shorn are perfectly white and when they leave the shearing pens that way the wool is not hard to clip. The strike so far has been non-violent, but the shearers are organizing and a committee will wait upon all the men at work and try to induce them to quit, but if the men fail to all go to work soon the sheep men assert that they will ship in Mormon shearers and go ahead. The trouble is putting the wool growers to considerable trouble, but they declare they will not submit to the raise. There are probably 150 shearers on the streets unemployed, and not more than forty who stick to their jobs.

PLANS FOR SATLAIR NEARING COMPLETION

J. E. Langford, lessee of the Saltair beach resort and railroad, announced yesterday that George Derr had been appointed general superintendent out at the resort. Mr. Langford will supervise the whole concern, of course, and will take charge of all matters connected with the railroad, while his son, J. E. Langford, Jr., will take over all excursion agency affairs.
Construction is well under way with the building of the hardwood floor in the landing pavilion. The Salt Lake Building and Manufacturing company, who have the contract for this, announce that they will have everything in shape when the season is scheduled to commence.
Music will be furnished this year by the Christensen orchestra. The first excursion date of the season has been secured by the Pioneer State Mutual Improvement association.

Mrs. Ellen Ole, so full of joy, sang merrily at her table. Then she flew into a rage, called the witnesses liars and other hard names and ended the scene by being taken from the courtroom in a hysterical condition, screaming at the top of her voice and declaring that she would not even with her alleged persecutors. The girl's step-father sat with her for a time and attempted to quiet her, but finding that his efforts were without avail, he gave up the self-imposed task and left the courtroom. Both cases against the girl were continued until today to give time for the subpoenaing of witnesses for the defense.
Omission of the word "liars" from a vital part of the complaint charging T. B. Armstrong with having violated the ordinance providing that the windows of saloons shall be unblinded on Sunday, resulted in the dismissal of the case yesterday. The City Attorney made a motion that he be permitted to amend the complaint, the omission in which was due to a clerical error, but the motion was denied, and the introduction of evidence showing that the saloon is a place where intoxicating liquors are sold was ruled to be out of place. Under the circumstances there was nothing to do but to dismiss the case.
Sarah Wolff, on trial for vagrancy and the use of obscene and abusive language in a public place, created a disgusting scene in court yesterday afternoon. Sarah, the sixteen-year-old girl who a few weeks ago was arrested for maintaining legal relations with a young soldier, and seems that after gaining her liberty, of which she was deprived for a time on that charge, she proceeded on the downward road at a more rapid pace than before. Employees of the Parlor drug store, the corner of State and Second, South Street, testified that she had associated with soldiers and prostitutes, who have been in the habit of frequenting that corner.

Two other dames overheard the names At Mrs. McCafferty directed. And in Dill's court the Goodhue poet To explain her act was elected.
Only language pure, Mrs. Ole was sure, She had used on this occasion. But the other three declared that she Was guilty of peace abrasion.
Across the fence the words intense Were wafted in profusion, And as she sang the vulgar slang Caused blazes and confusion.
To solve the plot the court was not Deprived without reflection, But to Mrs. Ole the joy of Mrs. Ole May give place to sad dejection.

PICTURE MAP MADE FOR THE WORLD'S FAIR

One of the novelties in the Utah exhibit at the World's fair will be a picture map of Utah prepared by the sixth grade pupils at the Ogden school. It was made by clipping and pasting pictures in the outlines of the State map, each picture representing the industries carried on in the section of the State covered by it. Summit county, for instance, is designated by the picture of the interior of a mine; Cache valley by ruins, trees, etc.; the reservation by Indians, Sanpete by wheat fields, etc. The idea is very clever and has been well carried out. The same school has prepared a similar map of the Western states.
